

Musically Inclined Utahns Who Are in New York. The Opera Season Ends

NEW YORK, April 25.—A charming concert of chamber music, and the last but one of the season, was given by the Olive Mead quartette at Mendelssohn hall. This quartette consists of four young women, and their rendition of the classic works of Beethoven, Mozart and other masters of the quartette form is most artistic. The closing concert of quartette music will be a Beethoven programme by the famous Kniesel quartette, on May 30, at Mendelssohn. This organization, by the way, is the first string quartette on earth to count its financial success in six figures.

Sir Edward Elgar of oratorio fame left yesterday for England, after a two months' visit in New York, during which time he has conducted many of his own oratorios. Sir Edward says he has greatly enjoyed his American visit, but is glad to return, as he has been "nearly killed with too much kindness"—to quote himself. Sir Edward says that he is amazed at the vast and growing number of music lovers among the American people. He also says that during his sojourn he has worked hard on a number of new works which will soon be completed.

The first season of grand opera at the Manhattan opera-house ended last night with a brilliant performance of "Aida." After the second act Mr. Hammerstein was called before the curtain, and surrounded by the stars of the evening, was presented with a large silver loving cup, on which were engraved the names of all his artists, and also the opening bars of the opera, "I Puritani," with which the house was dedicated last fall. The Italian conductor, the clever Campanini, made the presentation speech, and the audience then demanded a response from Mr. Hammerstein, who in a few words explained how at first his venture had cost him dear, as all the early performances ran an average of $5000 behind each night. He discovered to his surprise that the public in New York, and that he had to go ahead and create one, which he did. The response from the public was such that at the end of the season he could announce that the receipts were far in excess of the expenses, and that the surplus would be used for improvements. He closed with, "I thank you again and again, and I hope to see you all next season, and again appreciate your applause."

The many Salt Lake pupils of Edward MacDowell will be glad to hear that the MacDowell fund has already reached the substantial sum of $30,000. The greater part of this amount has been made through the efforts of the Mendelssohn

Music and Musicians

Glee club. At its concert last Tuesday $5000 was added to the fund. The last appearance of the famous pianist, Shevchik, at Mendelssohn hall, on Wednesday, will be in aid of that worthy object.

Throughout all the world concerts are now taking place to celebrate the fortieth anniversary as a composer of Edward Grieg, the noted Norwegian. In Berlin a grand commemorative concert in the Philharmonic was given, with Grieg himself conducting some of his greatest orchestral numbers. Here in New York the anniversary will be commemorated by a large letter in Carnegie hall, the proceeds of which will go toward erecting a monument in Grieg's honor here in this city. A choir of 100 from the United Norwegian Singing Societies will be heard in some Grieg chorals, and the soloist will be Miss Marie Sandel-Beane, who has recently sung with Grieg in Norway. An orchestra of fifty-two will accompany.

Another noted concert for Sunday evening will be that of the United German Singing society. The occasion will be their grand festival concert for the benefit of five large New York hospitals. This body of singers rarely appears in public, and then only in aid of some noteworthy charity. Their last public performance was two years ago, when they gave a memorable concert to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the great Schubert, by many American and German artists took part.

Ellen Beach Yaw, who a few days ago became the bride of Vere Goldthwaite, a young lawyer, whom she romantically met while he was living on a Western ranch, has won fame as a singer, and especially for the range of her voice—from B below the staff to E in altissimo. She was born near Buffalo, N. Y., but spent the greater part of her girlhood in California. She made her debut at Nice in April, 1893, and achieved instant success.

It has been intimated that the receipts of the Corned Metropolitan Opera company in Boston were $75,000 in round numbers, a sum not only exceeding that taken in by the company in former years, but forming a noteworthy contrast to the last Boston season, when there was a deficit in the treasury, and Mr. Corried vowed never to darken Boston again. The remarkable sale of seats has been accredited to the popularity of Geraldine Farrar, who came originally from Boston. This deduction has been made from the fact that the opera in which she sang, "Faust," "Tannhauser" and "Madame Butterfly," drew the largest houses, bringing even greater audiences than Curo.

Henry W. Savage, with George Marion and his European agents, arrived in Paris this week. During his stay in the French capital he will conduct a series of auditions with a view to selecting voices for next year's English grand opera organization.

It is reported that rehearsals of "The Prince of Pilsen" may be given in Paris while the composer, Gustave Loders, and Henry W. Savage are in Europe prior to the coming European premiere of this tuneful musical comedy. "The Prince of Pilsen" is now approaching the end of its fifth successful season in this country. Next year the piece will be sent on an extended tour to the Pacific coast.

A Paris cablegram announces that Gertrude Krennson, for four years one of the prima donnas with the Savoy English Grand Opera company, is soon to make her European debut at the Theatre de la Monnaie in Brussels. Miss Krennson last appeared in this country as Sieglind in "The Valkyrie." During the past year she has been studying in Paris.

Jealousy over her sweetheart's artistic admiration of Mme. Calve, the famous prima donna, is said to be the cause for the sensational suicide in New York of Isabella Routtelot, a handsome French girl, who ended her life in the apartment of the man she loved. Louis Belleville, the man with whom the girl was in love, and because of whom she decided to die, is a "cellist" in the orchestra of the Manhattan opera-house. He has played in many famous orchestras, and in this capacity has been thrown much in the company of Mme. Calve, for whom he expresses the utmost devotion and admiration. For more than three years Isabella Routtelot, the dead girl, had been engaged to be married to Belleville. Again and again was the wedding postponed, and the girl obtained employment in a dressmaking establishment. Two months ago, soon after Mme. Calve became a member of the Hammerstein forces, a quarrel arose between Miss Routtelot and Belleville, which ended in a broken engagement. The girl, who devotedly loved her artist sweetheart, tried repeatedly to heal the breach, but without success, and she ended her life with poison.

The last issue of Browning's Magazine contains a double-page drawing by Jack Sears of Salt Lake and a former artist on The Salt Lake Tribune. It is entitled, "Ideal Renderings of the Miserere," and shows the interior of a handsome home, with two artists, one at the piano, the other with a violin. In an effort to render the "Miserere" while on the outside is an organ-grinder attempting the same thing. The look of disgust upon the part of the first two and the placid countenance of the latter make an admirable picture. The Magazine company has the picture enlarged for framing, and the first and second editions have become exhausted. Mr. Sears' friends here will be glad to know that both he and his estimable wife are doing nicely in the East. They will pay Salt Lake a visit this summer.

At the First Methodist church this morning Edward Kimball, organist, will play Frederic Massengale's "Intermezzo," and for an offertory, Kinder's "Requiem." For an anthem the choir will sing "King of Glory" by Green. Misses Alma Young and Martha McClain will sing "Softly Now the Light of Day," by Spaulding. The choir will sing at the evening service, "Hold Thou My Hand."

By special request, Miss Agnes Dalquist, accompanied by six of her advanced pupils, gave a pianoforte recital has done for others it may do for you.

CLARENCE HAMILTON.

"Enclosed you will find a recent photograph of myself, showing the growth of my hair since beginning the use of your Herpicide. Before using Herpicide, the top of my head was completely bald, but the use of only two bottles has brought a new growth of hair. I had spent between $20 and $50 on other remedies, but failed to derive any benefit until using your Herpicide. I cannot commend this remedy too highly to any with dandruff, baldness or falling hair."

(Signed) CLARENCE HAMILTON, Atlanta Police Department, Atlanta, Georgia.

WHILE CHRONIC BALDNESS is incurable, many cases of primary or incipient baldness have been completely cured with Newbro's Herpicide, the original remedy that "kills the dandruff germ."

Of course, the rational plan is to save the hair while there is hair to save, but even after it is gone there is a "fighting chance" if the hair follicles are not atrophied. Herpicide stops itching of the scalp instantly.
